Foreword

The theme of the 1952 Crusader, "It's Fun to Live in America", might well have been "It's Fun to Attend Woodrow Wilson", because life at our school typifies so well life in America.

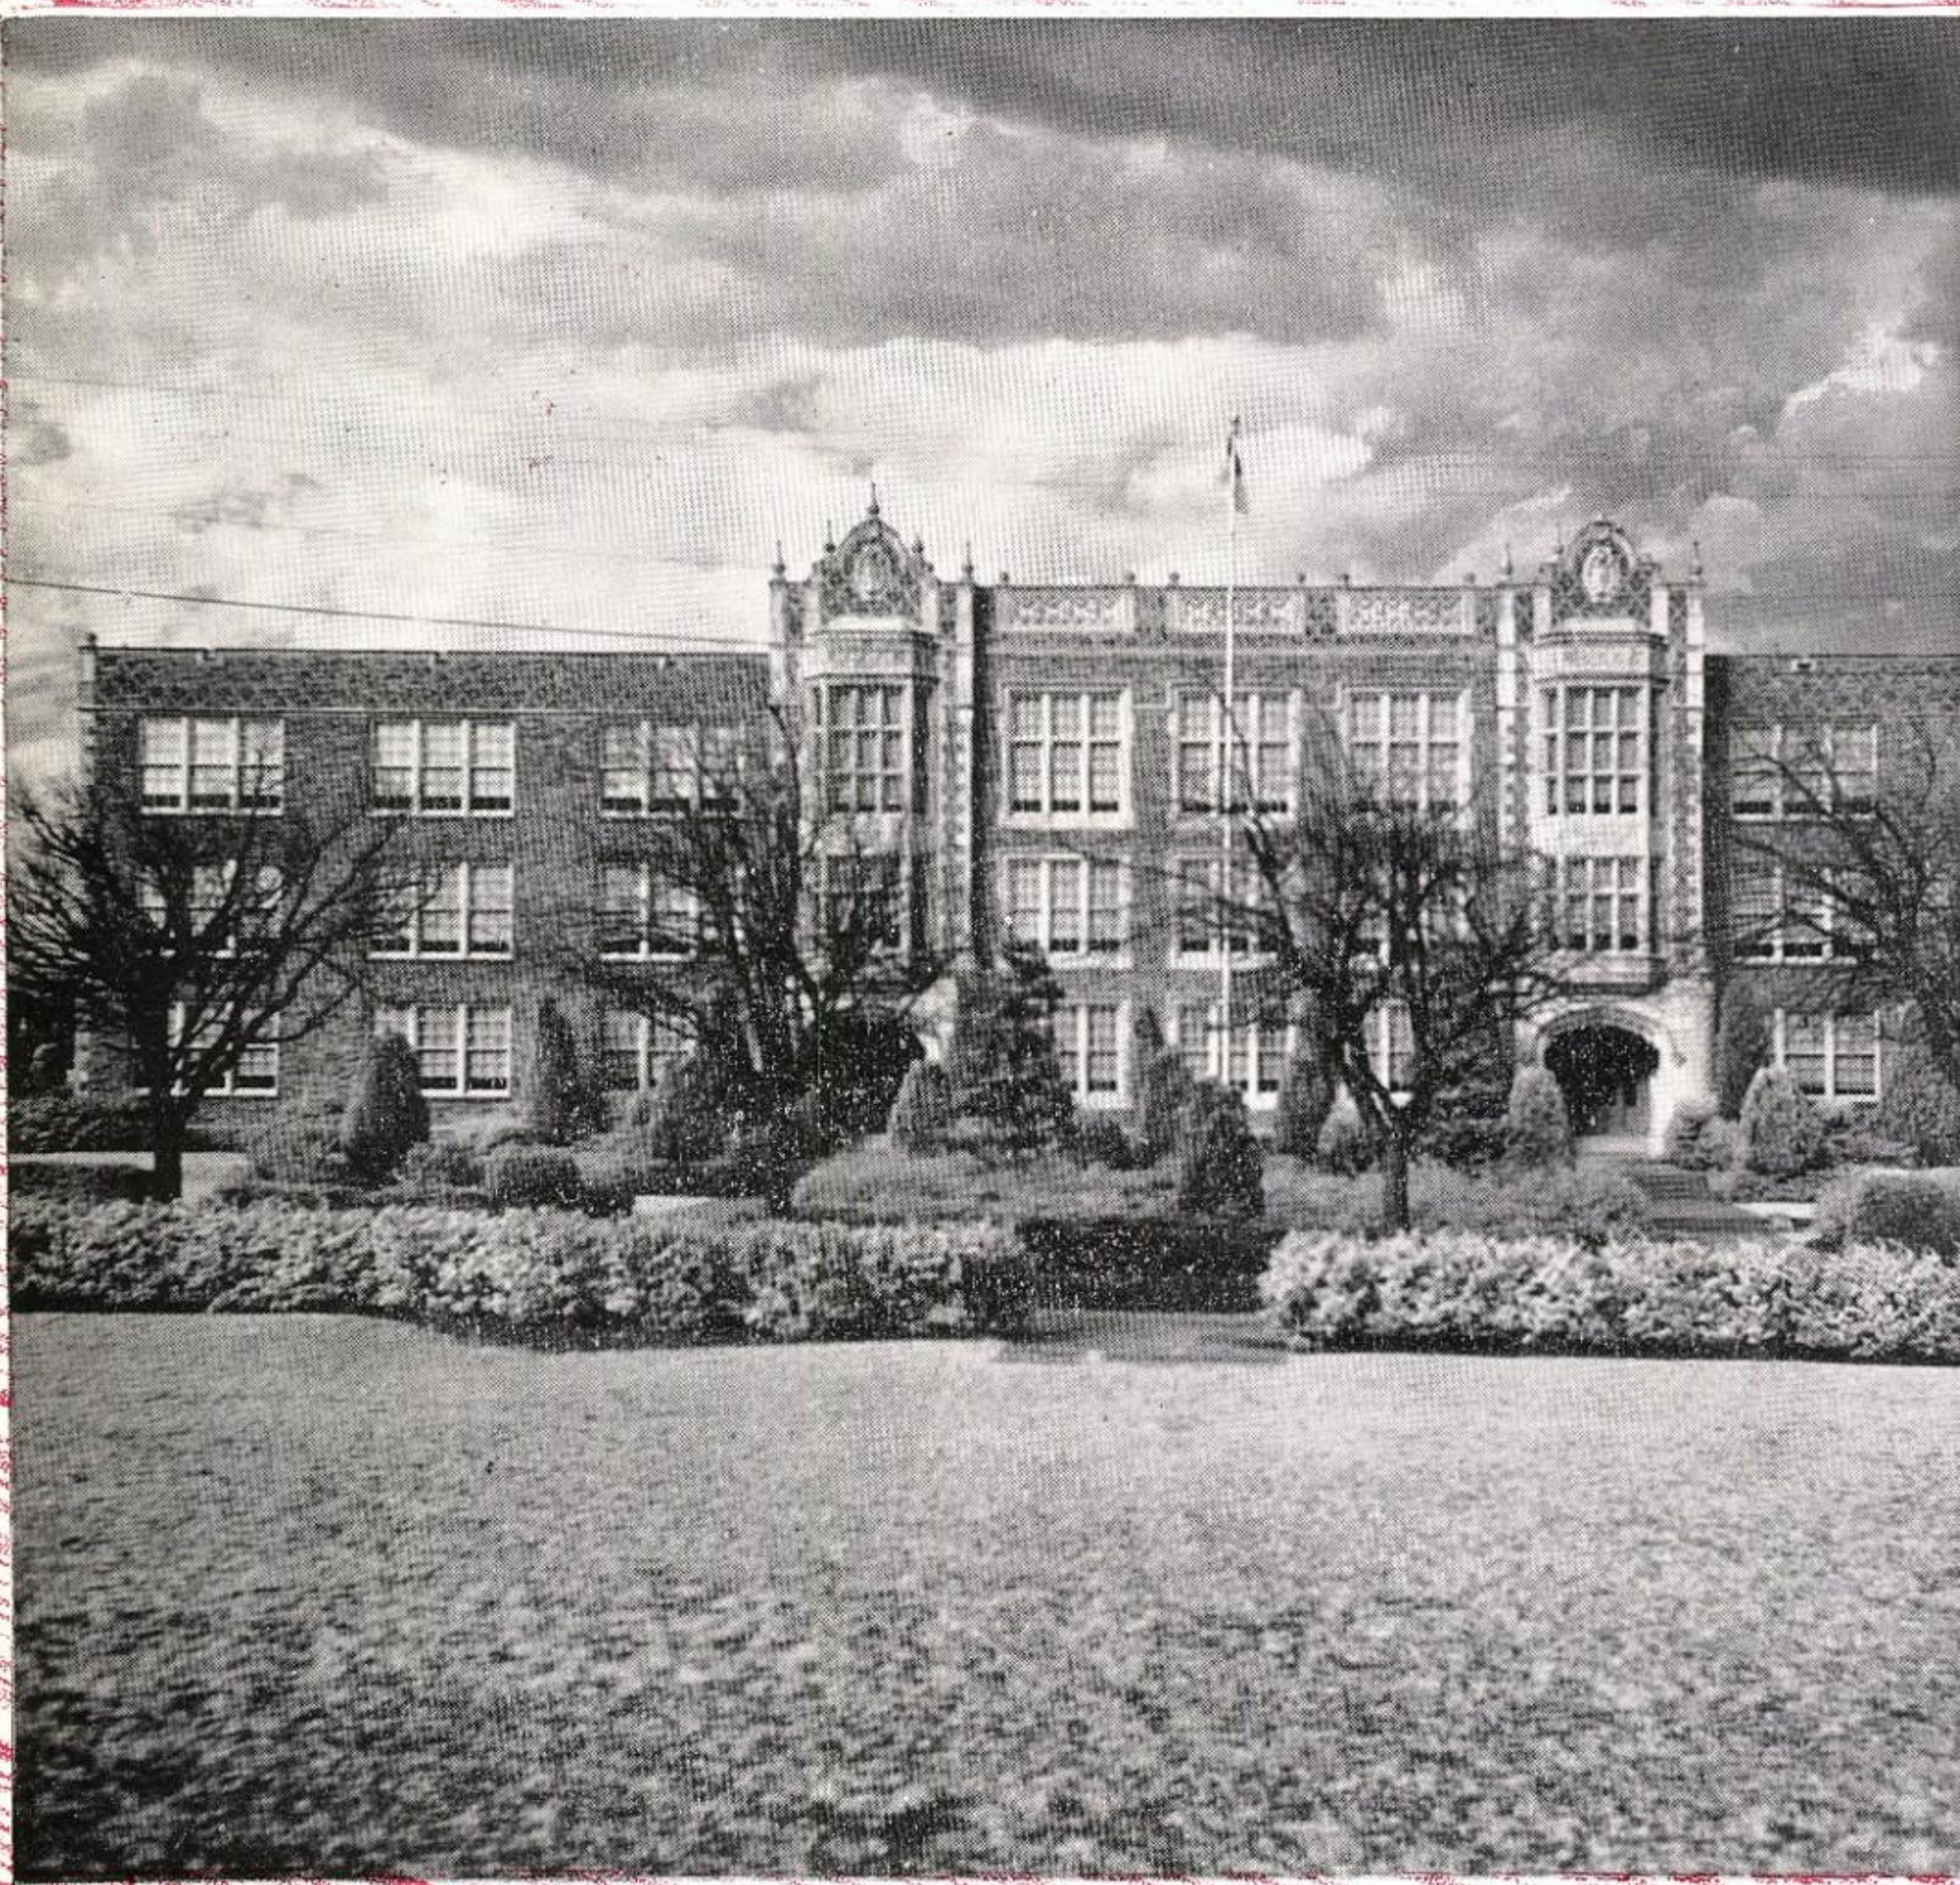

Through this theme we are striving to bring to our fellow-students a fuller realization of the wonderful advantages of our American Way of Life, and to express our appreciation for the privileges and responsibilities that we as young Americans so often take for granted.

We are proud that we live in America, not because we are so much better off than other people, but proud because we are part of a country that enables us to attain all these advantages, and also to help those who are less fortunate than we.

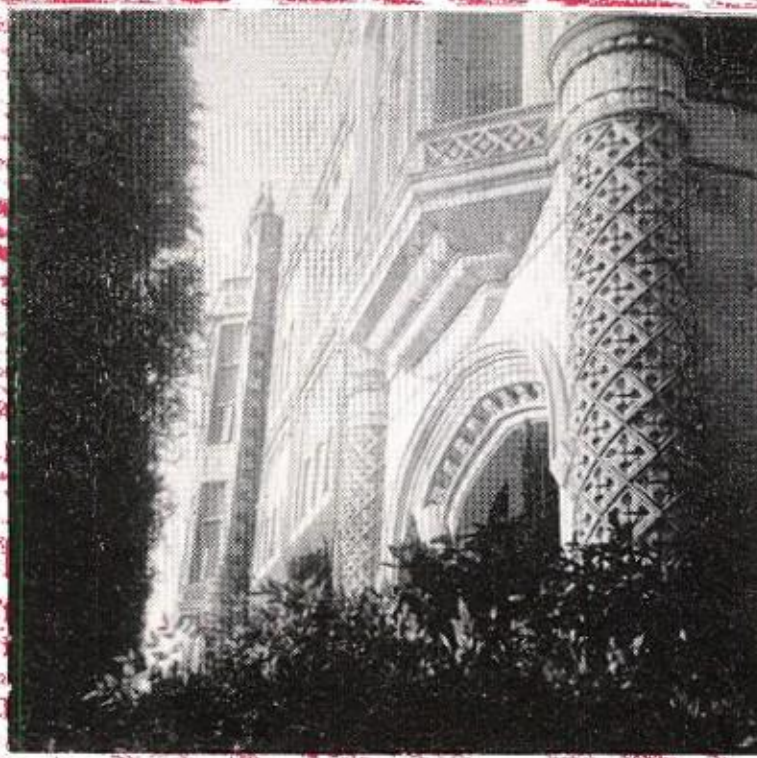

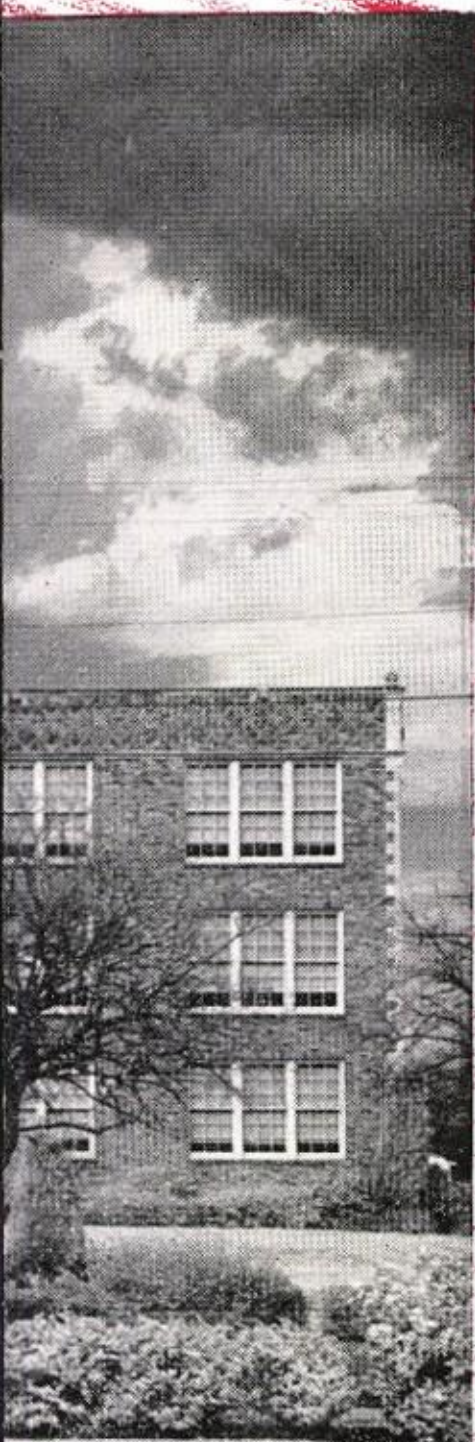

In times such as these with so much turmoil in the world it is only fitting that we "here highly resolve" that we will do our part in spreading America's joys to the rest of the world.

Let's keep it fun to live in America!

For the inspiration of this theme we are indebted to the booklet "It's Fun to Live in America", published in 1951 by Kwianis International.

The memory of Woodrow Wilson will always include its magnificent structure and well-kept landscape. Against a threatening sky, its staunch, yet delicate, lines are serene and dignified. The west front is beautifully softened by the afternoon sunlight, and under Winter's bleak reign, the crystal coats of ice serve only to enhance its stoic beauty.

dedication

The students of Woodrow Wilson are fortunate to have as their Dean so capable a person as Mrs. Lorene Francis.

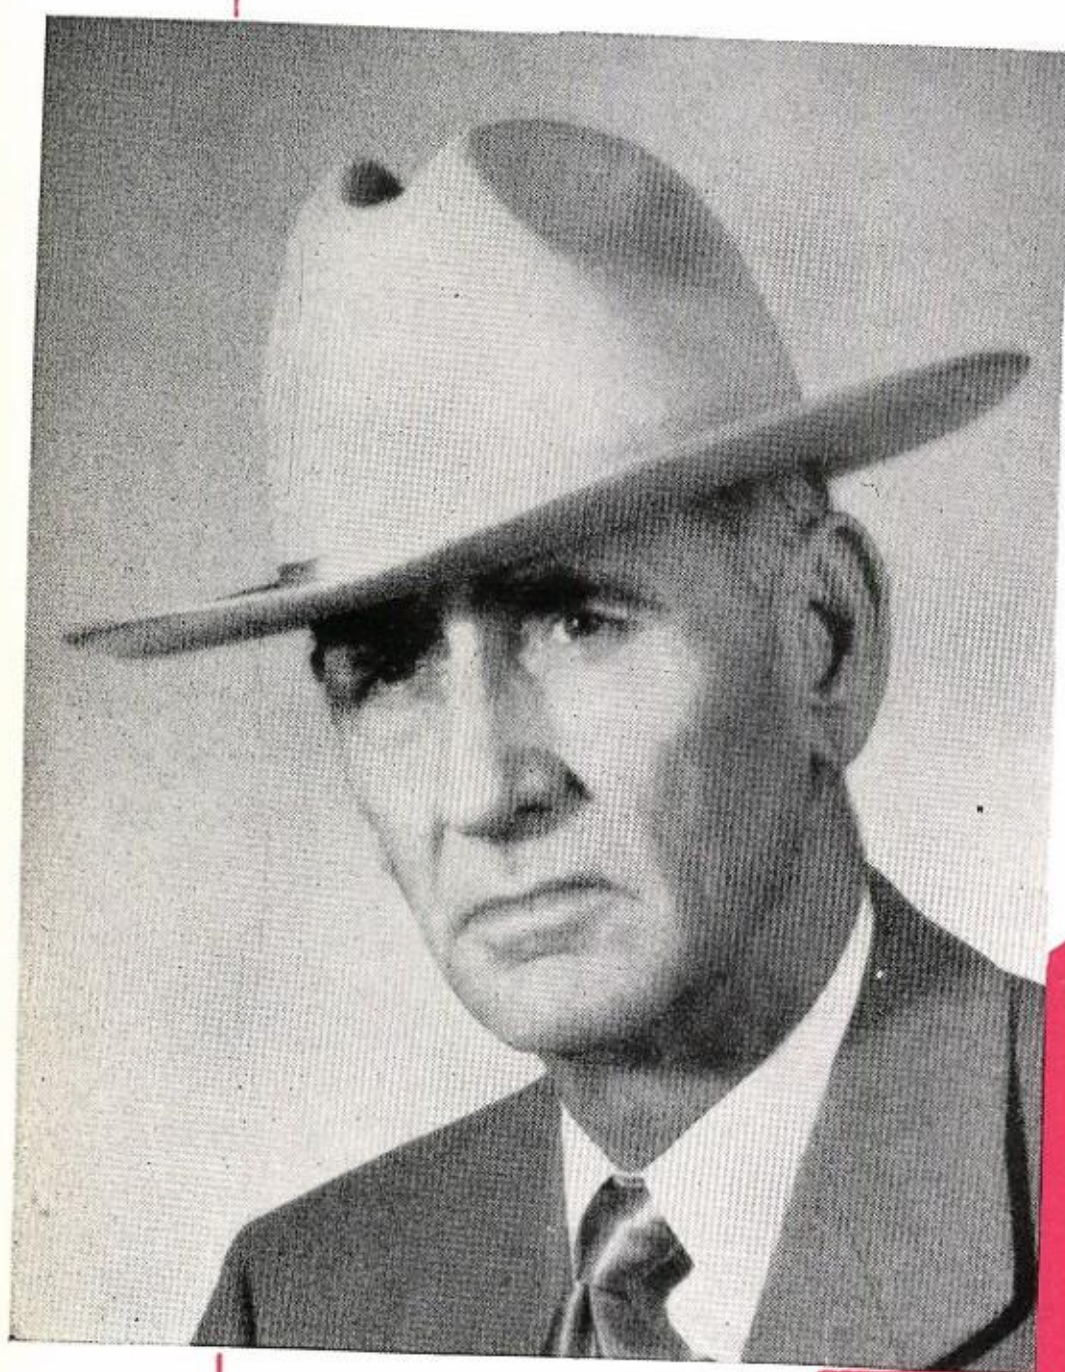

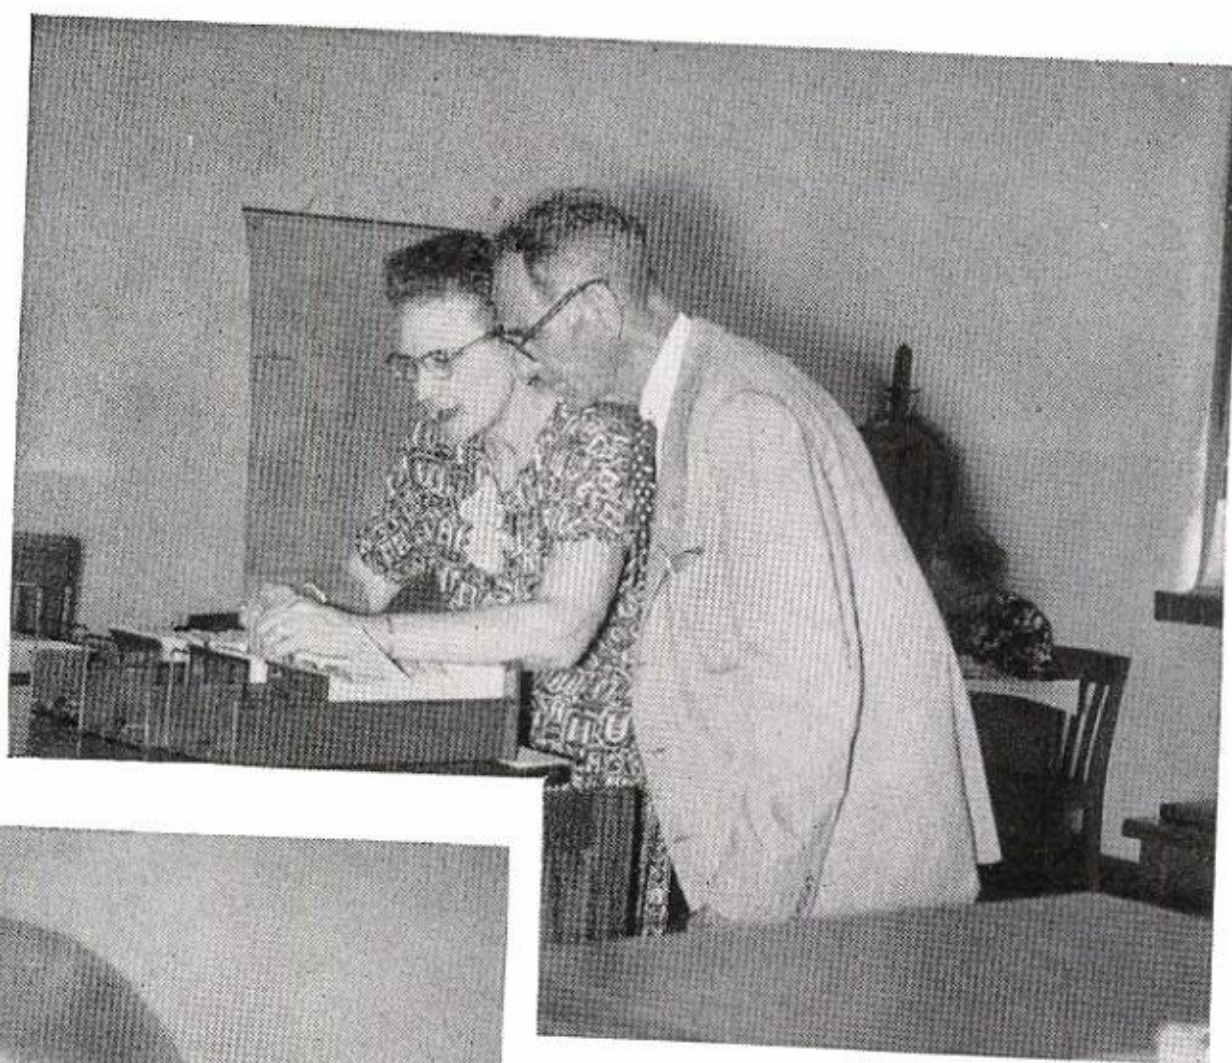

Because of her gracious manner, wise counsel, friendly understanding of the students' viewpoints and seemingly inexhaustable patience, we dedicate to her with affection and pride this twenty-fourth edition of the Crusader.

IN MEMORIAM

Miss Ruby Keith, whose firm beliefs in democratic ideals greatly influenced the thoughts of her students, died November 30, 1951. Her life was in accordance with her teachings. Although her actual presence will be missed, the qualities she impressed upon those she taught will continue to exist.

Miss Fincher displays the results of her artists' efforts.

Y-TEENS

Up one flight of stairs, a sharp turn to the left, and into the den labeled 211 is where, on every second Tuesday, you'll be most likely to find the Y-Teen meeting at Woodrow. They'll be doing everything from getting hints from a model to planning their next dance. A branch of the Y.W.C.A., this organization gives its members a wholesome outlook on life, and also fills an important bill with its wide selection of social activities.

Student Council

Both the teacher and the student have a right-hand man in the person of a good Student Council representative, chosen from each home room. They represent the student body in most issues where its general opinion and approval is desired. These students must be efficient, dependable, courteous, and friendly in order to handle the business that comes before them — magazine drives, collecting money for school publications and extra projects, besides other general home room business.

Junior Red Cross

This chapter of the Junior Red Cross, directed by Allys Boyle, is composed of students elected from their home rooms to further the aims and objectives of the American Red Cross at Woodrow Wilson. These purposes are, first of all, to motivate school work with real life situations; then, to develop a sense of voluntary service and responsibility for the welfare of others. Finally, it is to build an understanding and appreciation of the culture of all people.

Little Theater

A delightful mixture of talent and ham are served regularly every other Monday afternoon at the meeting of Mr. Morgan's Little Theater. Here, would-be actors and actresses give expression to their dramatic inclinations through impersonations, pantomimes, musical renditions and dialects. Not content with entertaining each other at the meetings, the members never hesitate to accept invitations to display their talents by appearances on the assemblies. Who knows but that this group may produce another Lunt and Fontaine!

Senior Honor Library Council

Where can I find a book on geology . . . or one of those new novels . . . the magazines with the latest information on atomic weapons?" Such questions are familiar to the Library Council, an honorary organization that exists in the regular library routine. Members, recommended by teachers in regard to scholarship, leadership, co-operation and service, also aid in creating a quiet atmosphere in the library.

Projectionists

Dark and dreary-looking as it may seem, Room 208 is not the chamber of horrors — only the projection room, well-equipped with dark curtains, black shades, and other essentials. Here the students who have learned how to screen the movies give freely of their regular study time to help with the visual education program. And not only must the qualified projectionist know how to run the machine, but he must also have a multitude of tricks up his sleeve, touse in case of difficulties.
